

DIA Selected as World Trade Center Denver 2009 Strategic Partner

Outside the Denver World Trade Center offices, WTC President and Chief Executive Officer Jim Reis presented his organization's 2009 Strategic Partner Award to DIA's manager, Kim Day.

Denver International Airport was the recipient of the World Trade Center Denver's 2009 Strategic Partner Award for the airport's outstanding support of WTC's activities and events, as well as for its help in developing and printing a new WTC Denver marketing brochure.

World Trade Center Denver is the premier international business resource in the Rocky Mountain region. With 250 members, the WTC Denver centralizes trade and business activities, while bringing together influential business people from around the world.

WTC Denver members play a key role in shaping the region's position within the global economy. DIA is an investor's club member and partner to the WTC Denver. They work together to attract international business and international air service to Denver.
